The Town of Eagle Updated Response to COVID-19 Novel Coronavirus

For health and safety of employees and community, unprecedented changes in Town operations effective Monday, November 16, 2020 tentatively through Friday, January 1, 2021

Eagle, Colorado — November 13, 2020 — Starting November 16, 2020 The Town of Eagle is cancelling all non-essential, non-government meetings, events and has closed public access to town-owned facilities on a rolling basis to limit exposure and slow the transmission of the COVID-19 novel coronavirus.

The measure is the latest step taken Friday by Town Manager Brandy Reitter to address the rise in COVID-19 cases in the community and to keep the workforce safe. As a community, everyone is responsible for the well-being of their fellow citizen to prevent the spread of COVID-19.

Other steps include operational changes and closures of Town facilities to limit person-to-person spread of the virus. These changes include but may not be limited to; consolidation of in-person business transaction activity at Town Hall; shifting non-essential services to telephone-only; and facilitate meetings virtually.

The Town Manager is requiring non-essential, non-public safety municipal workers, whose duties allow them to work from home, to begin making arrangements with supervisors to temporarily work remotely from home, through January 1, 2021. The goal of these arrangements is to continue to provide as many Town services as possible while minimizing in-person contact.
